55 Mediterranean Sea, Kircher (Athanasius), Mappa Maris Mediterranei Fluxus Currentes et Naturam motionum explicans, circa 1680, uncoloured engraved map, old folds, 345 x 560mm

An unusual map from Kircher's 'Mundus Subterraneus', the first serious effort to describe the physical make up of the earth, proposing theories (sometimes fantastical) in the areas of physics, geography, geology, and chemistry. The map is devoid of political - and most geographical - information and instead focuses entirely on ocean currents in the Mediterranean Sea. The map extends to the Black Sea and parts of the Caspian and Red Sea. Kircher's theories included the notion that the world's oceans were all interconnected and thus this map depicts subterranean tunnels connecting the oceans and seas.

(1) £100 - £150

77 Smith (William & Cary John). Geological Map of Oxfordshire by W Smith, Mineral Surveyor, published J. Cary, Feby. 1st. 1821, engraved map with contemporary hand colouring identifying the various rock strata of the county, oval cartouche, compass rose and key, slight creasing, slight staining to left hand margin, 560 x 490mm

The noted cartographer, engraver and publisher John Cary (1755-1835) collaborated with William Smith, 'the father of English geology', on a number of his geological projects, notably the 1815 Map and geological sections (1817-1819) Cary had previously produced large, topographical county maps for his 'New and Correct English Atlas' and the plates which were being prepared for a new edition were instead adapted to accommodate Smith's detailed geology, the first set of geological maps being issued in 1819. This is the first state of these geological county maps. There is a second state which although coloured using William Smith's geology, gives no acknowledgement to Smith at all. Rare.

107* Gillray (James). Sans-Culottes Feeding Europe with the Bread of Liberty, published H. Humphrey, Jany. 12th. 1793, hand coloured etching, slight overall toning, 305 x 365mm, mounted, framed and glazed, together with A Burgess of Warwick Lane, published H. Humphrey, July 3rd. 1795, etching with contemporary hand colouring, 245 x 155mm, mounted, framed and glazed

The first described item shows five vignettes, with a central group of John Bull, caught between Sheridan and Fox, who are forcibly feeding him with the bread of liberty. Both of the politicians are depicted as ragged and bare-legged sans-culottes, wearing bonnets-rouges. Each forces a small loaf inscribed 'Liberty', on the point of a dagger, into John's gaping mouth and at the same time picking his pockets. In the background, standing on a barren plain, are a gibbet with a hangman's noose and the ruins of Temple Bar. The other groups show French sans-culottes despoiling 'Holland', 'Savoy', 'Germany' & 'Prussia', and 'Italy'.

138 Japan. Ino Tadataka, Kokogun-Zenzu, Atlas of the Provinces & Districts of Japan, 2 volumes, Nagoya: Tempo 8, [1837], seventy-five (complete) colour woodblock maps, some warming but largely confined to margins, contemporary yellow paper wrappers with printed titles to upper covers, side stitched Japanese style binding, 280 x 200mm

A beautiful atlas which illustrates Japanese cartography at its finest. Such atlases were compiled by order of the Shogun Tokugawa and given as gifts to his favoured warlords. Many of the feudal fortresses in Japan were subsequently destroyed by war and fire, their archives were lost, and thus few such examples survive. Further Ino Tadataka material is scarce as most of his surviving maps were assembled in the late 1800s by an imperial functionary and avid Ino collector. They were subsequently stored in the Royal Palace archives which were themselves, tragically, destroyed by fire in 1912

WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL

148 Churchill (Winston Spencer). The Story of the Malakand Field Force, an episode of frontier war, 1st edition, 1st issue, Longmans, Green, & Co., 1898, half-tone frontispiece, 2 folding maps, 4 sketch maps, 32pp publisher's catalogue dated 12/97 at rear, no errata slip tipped in (so indicating first issue), scattered minor spotting, pages uncut and largely unopened, contemporary ink inscription to front free endpaper verso, 'E.R. Kersley from Jack Churchill', partly offset into marginal browning of half-title facing, armorial bookplate of Trevor Rostron to front pastedown, original green cloth gilt, a little rubbed and minor soiling, 8vo
Woods A1a.

Provenance: Given to Captain Edward Reginald Kersley DSO (1883-1976) of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers by the younger brother of Winston Churchill, Major John Strange 'Jack' Spencer Churchill (1880-1947). The inscription is not in Jack's hand and would appear to be in the hand of Kersley who along with his own brother and the Churchill brothers attended Harrow School. In the Harrovian War Supplement (September 1918) it is noted that Kersley received his Bar to DSO for when 'he took command of his battalion at short notice, and organised and launched an attack which was completely successful, capturing the final objective. He showed great initiative and skill throughout'. Jack Churchill, who had served in the South African Light Horse alongside his war correspondent brother in the second Boer war in 1899-1900, also fought in World War I, where he was again mentioned in Dispatches. He served on the staff of Field Marshal Lord French, General Sir Ian Hamilton and Field Marshal Lord Birdwood, being awarded the DSO in 1918.

Herbert Edward Cox (1870-1941) was born in Coventry, the fifth of seven children born to James and Sarah Cox. He attended the Grammar School, and after the death of his father in 1887 he trained to paint at the Municipal School of Art in Coventry, becoming a designer and draughtsman. The family moved in 1901 to Eastbourne, where his mother kept a lodging house and he took up textile design. Herbert returned to the Midlands after marrying fellow Coventrian, Margaret Shilton, a secondary school teacher, in Yorkshire. He taught painting at the Coventry Technical Institute and became recognised locally as an accomplished artist, recording street scenes of pre-war Coventry and many surrounding villages and towns.

John Beaumont (c. 1640–1731) was a natural philosopher, surgeon and collector of geological specimens from Ston Easton, Somerset. This was Beaumont's most substantial work, and demonstrated his considerable knowledge of English and Continental scholarship. In particular he defended the existence of spirits, and their ability to communicate with human beings, against the criticisms of Balthasar Bekker. His efforts were praised by Fowler, and by William Nicolson, bishop of Carlisle, and was said to have converted his old adversary, Thomas Burnet' (ODNB)

202 Bracton (Henry de). De legibus et consuetudinibus Angliae libri quin[que], 1st edition, London: Richard Tottell, 1569, roman type, woodcut initials (several on criblé ground), shallow tide mark to head of gutter in first 10 or so quires, closed tear in leaf 3G4 extending into bottom 10 lines of text, light marginal worming from leaf 5K1 to end, contemporary ink annotations to initial blank and head of title-page, near-contemporary blind-ruled calf, manuscript spine-title, worm-tracks to foot of spine, wear to foot of front joint, a little surface-wear to covers, folio (28.9 x 18.5cm)

Provenance: Sir Daniel Dun (or Donne, c.1545–1617), ecclesiastical lawyer, with his ownership inscription 'Daniel Dun, prec [i.e. price] xi(7)6' (scored through) to the head of the title-page.

Dun was admitted a fellow of All Souls, Oxford, in 1567 and became principal of New Inn Hall in 1580. He rose rapidly through the ecclesiastical courts and from 1598 began also to receive instruction to 'inquire into delicate and complicated maritime matters' (ODNB), travelling to Bremen in 1602 to treat with Danish sailors on the Muscovy trade and other matters. He was later a justice of assize in north Wales. 'Historians habitually assess the importance of members of learned professions by what they wrote. A moment's reflection, however, shows how inadequate a test of a lawyer's importance it is. Most lawyers do not write treatises: they act. Dun never published a treatise, yet he was responsible for real accomplishments at a critical moment in the history of ecclesiastical law in England. He rose to high office, and he influenced the course of affairs in Church and state' (Helmholz, 'Sir Daniel Dun (c.1545–1617)', Ecclesiastical Law Journal (2014), 16(2), p. 205).

For another example of Dun's signature see Lambeth Palace Library MS 1748 ('Statutes of the Court of the Arches'), folio 1 recto Beale T323; ESTC S122159; PMM 89; STC 3475; Sweet & Maxwell I p. 514.

The foundational work of English common law and 'the most ambitious English legal work of the middle ages, apparently conceived on a grand scale as an overall survey and discussion of the whole of the common law as it was being applied in the king's courts in England, with supporting citations of actual decided cases, and the reproduction of writ and enrolment formulas currently in use' (ODNB) very occasional light worming to lower margins, page-edges untrimmed, contemporary blind-ruled sheep, top spine compartment replaced using modern leather, folio (26 x 17cm)

'Of the three parliaments of the Cromwellian Protectorate, the second is arguably the most dramatic. This parliament was dominated by two immediate crises: the need to provide money for the state to maintain a large army and navy to fight an expensive war against Spain; and also the need to legitimise a government founded on a military constitution (the Instrument of Government of 1653) that had never been approved by parliament' (History of Parliament, online).

ESTC traces nine copies world-wide for this edition of the Instructions (item 10), four for An Act for Discovering ... Popish Recusants (item 15), nine for An Act for the Attainder (item 20), ten for An Act for the Three Moneths Assessment (item 22), ten for An Act for Limiting ... Prices for Wines (item 24), and six for An Act against Vagrants (item 27).

A Methodicall Collection of such Statutes and Customes, with the Cases, Opinions, Arguments and Points of Learning in the Law, as doe properly concerne Women*, 1st edition, London: printed by the assignes of John More, and are to be sold by John Grove, 1632, text mainly in black letter, initial blank (A1) present, worm-track to first 10 leaves, touching text in signature a3, reducing thereafter to a variable stipple in lower outer corners, the text never affected, early ink-stain to p. 379 partially obscuring one word recto, contemporary sprinkled sheep, rubbed and scuffed, a few sections of wear, 4to (18.8 x 13.6cm)

ESTC S100217; STC 7437; Sweet & Maxwell I p. 500 24

Thought to have been written in the late 16th century, the work is habitually described as the first book in English exclusively on the legal rights of women 'Bly the standards of the day, and within the deeply male world of the common law, the author was surprisingly moderate and open-minded in his vision of women and their entitlements' (Stretton, Women Waging Law in Elizabethan England, p. 47). 'T. E., who signs the epistle to the reader and may be T. Edgar, is only the editor and does not know who the author is. The preface is signed by I. L. and indicates that the work "was long since collected" and the author is dead' (STC); it has been plausibly attributed to Sir John Dodderidge (1555-1628)

209 Hollinshed (Raphael). The Firste volume of the Chronicles of England, Scotlande, and Irelande, 3 parts in 1 volume [of 2], 1st edition, London; for John Hunne, 1577, *general title-page and 2 section-titles each with woodcut border, woodcuts throughout the text, text mainly in black letter and in double column, worming to first title-page and first few quires, reducing to a couple of small holes by quire E, and one by quire N, a few holes reappearing in part 3, very occasional sliver of damp-staining in margins, general title-page with repaired closed tears and marginal restoration, next 2 leaves (Epistle Dedicatory) with fraying and closed tears at fore edges, spill-burns in k6 affecting woodcut verso and 17 affecting a word either side, early annotations to r5 recto, part 2 with loss to section-title, retaining blank *b*6, B6 torn at upper outer corner to loss of pagination, closed tear in O7 extending into text, spill-burns in S5 and x6 affecting a word either side, part 3 with signatures (fluron)1-2 (section-title and dedication leaf) misbound after quire D, leaves E6-8 cancelled as usual, marginal damp-staining to quire H, 15 pp. of manuscript continuation in a contemporary hand bound in at rear (final leaf laid down), modern calf over wooden boards, folio in 8s (29.2 x 19cm)*

Provenance: Bound with an extensive manuscript continuation written in a contemporary hand and chronicling events in Ireland during the reigns of Edward VI, Mary and Elizabeth from 1546 to the time of Sir Henry Sydney (1529-1586), lord deputy in 1565-71 and later in 1575-8; this appears to be at least in part a transcription from the second volume of Holinshed's work. ESTC S3985, Pforzheimer 494; STC 13568b.

First edition of the first volume of Holinshed's great narrative history of the British Isles. The work was conceived as part of a 'deliberate movement to elevate the status of England, English letters, and English language through writing and publishing maps, histories, national epics, and theoretical works on English poetry' (ODNB). It is the single most important chronicle written in English in the 16th century — a secular counterpart to Foxe's Actes and Monuments (1563) — and the principal source for all of Shakespeare's conventional English history plays as well as King Lear, Macbeth and Cymbeline

220 Pownall (Thomas). The Administration of the Colonies. The Third Edition, Revised, Corrected, and Enlarged. To which is added, an Appendix, No. III, containing, Considerations on the Points lately brought into Question as to the Parliament's Right of taxing the Colonies, and of the Measures necessary to be taken at this Crisis. London: for J. Dodsley and J. Walter, 1766, 7 woodcuts in the text at pp. 172-4 reproducing the marks of Native American sachems (chiefs), small hole to head of half-title, contemporary sprinkled tan calf, floral devices gilt to spine compartments, 8vo (20.4 x 12.2cm) ESTC T90025; Howes P-539; Sabin 64816.

Pownall was governor of Massachusetts from 1757 to 1759, after which 'he remained an acknowledged expert on Britain's colonial affairs in general, especially the American colonies that declared independence in 1776. Pownall's most influential statement in this respect was his Administration of the Colonies, first published in 1764 ... Pownall consciously sought in this work to identify himself as a supporter of American liberty. Although he feared that Britain was losing control of its colonies, he wrote that the Americans were entitled to the same rights of representative government as their fellow subjects in England, Scotland, and Wales' (ODNB).

B.'), 1226 (Palmer)
 Stubbe's pamphlet sought to explain the miracle cures of Irish faith-healer Valentine Greatrakes (1629-1683) using a theory of fermentation and effluvia derived from Jan Baptist van Helmont (1580-1644). The second-bound work, Misopormist, is extremely rare, with ESTC tracing one copy world-wide, at the Folger Shakespeare Library. ESTC traces eight copies world-wide for The Office of Christian Parents. STC gives priority to another 1636 edition of Burton's For God and King printed at Amsterdam; there was also an Amsterdam edition of the Apology, to which STC assigns implicit priority.

Tooke, 1674, retaining initial blank A1, errata K3 and advertisement leaf K4, slight browning (stronger along edges), small worm-hole to foot of gutter, ramifying from quire D before disappearing by leaf H4, contemporary ownership inscriptions ('George Spens, 15 of September 1684' and variants) to inside covers and rear free endpaper, contemporary sheep, a little craquelure and wear, 8vo (17.2 x 11cm)

Provenance: Robert S. Pirie, his sale, Sotheby's New York, 2-4 December 2015, lot 356 (bookplate)

ESTC R8611; Keynes 92; Kress 1358; Sabin 23028, Wing E3504

'Commanded by Charles II to write about the history of the conflict between the Dutch and the English over the sovereignty of the seas Evelyn found his labours rejected as malapropos in a time of peace. The introduction was published as Navigation and Commerce in 1674, but the rest of his history, given to Pepys for his proposed history of the navy, was lost' (ODNB). A catalogue note laid into this copy identifies leaf II as being in its rare uncanceled state.

239 [Evelyn, Mary]. Mundus Muliebris: or, the Ladies Dressing-Room unlock'd, and her Toilette spread. In Burlesque. Together with the Fop-Dictionary, compiled for the Use of the Fair Sex. The Second Edition. To which is added a most rare and incomparable Receipt, to make Pig, or Puppido-Water for the Face. London: for R. Bentley, 1690, somewhat spotted and browned, short nick to upper inner corner of title-page, modern calf, 4to (20.2 x 14.2cm) ESTC R31459; Keynes 101; Wing E3523.

One of two editions described as the second edition on the title-page. 'In this edition the separate dated title page line 2 has a colon following "fop-dictionary" and the "C" of leaf C is under the space between "well" and "understood"' (ESTC). Written at least in large part by John Evelyn's daughter Mary, who died young of smallpox in 1685, Mundus muliebris is 'a brief satire in tetrameter couplets on fashionable women's clothing, accoutrements, and behaviour' (ODNB), and the Francophile affectations of Restoration manners

247* South Sea Bubble. The Bubbler's Medley, or a Sketch of the Times: Being Europe's Memorial for the Year 1720, printed for Carlington Bowles, No. 69 in St. Paul's Churchyard, London, circa 1765-80, etching on laid paper, watermarked, trimmed just inside plate mark, bears the number 23 to lower right corner, sheet size 33 x 24.5cm (13 x 9.75ins)

A satirical print on the South Sea Bubble or financial crisis in England of 1720, first published by Thomas Bowles in the same year, and reprinted by his nephew Carington Bowles some time between 1764 and 1793 when Carington was in business. The image comprises a variety of trompe l'oeil printed broadsides, playing cards and ballads, as well as an anamorphic image of a man on a horse to the lower right corner. The South Sea Company was a joint stock company created as a public/private partnership, whose stock rose purely on speculation and rumour, aided by insider trading and bribery of politicians, only to crash spectacularly in 1720, severely impoverishing many of its investors, including Sir Isaac Newton

Niccolo Aggiunti (1600-1635) was an eminent scholar, scientist and disciple of Galileo. He studied geometry and astronomy under Bernardo Castelli, and subsequently succeeded him to the chair of mathematics at the University of Pisa. After receiving his degree in philosophy and law, he became tutor to Ferdinand II de Medici, Grand Duke of Tuscany, in 1621, the year in which Ferdinand acceded to the dukedom. During this period he became a friend and pupil of Galileo (1564-1642). His only published work is this short oration in Praise of Mathematics, in which the author refers several times to Galileo, the telescope and astronomy. Recent scholarship has even suggested that the work may have been written by Galileo himself, so closely aligned is the text with Galileo's preoccupations and style of writing. See Mark A. Peterson, Galileo's Muse, Renaissance Mathematics and the Arts, Harvard University Press, 2011, where the author states that Aggiunti's publication is 'entirely Galilean in so many details that even if it is derivative, it must represent his thought'.

Neither edition in Adams

Rare early edition of Erasmus's work, which was first printed by Froben at Basel in 1531. This edition was printed by Christian Wechel and copies are also known with the imprint 'excudebat Christianus Wechel' and Roigny's name omitted; OCLC traces three institutional locations only for the present imprint (British Library, Rotterdam and University of Missouri). Raffaele Regio's translation of Plutarch was first printed in 1508, with another edition appearing in 1510. Apart from a copy noted at the Bibliothèque municipale du Mans (in the letter from Brigitte Moreau of the Bibliothèque nationale de France, accompanying this copy), this edition is untraced in libraries but has a similar collation to an edition with the imprint of Parisian bookseller Nicolas Crispin and dated 1523, itself represented by one institutional copy world-wide (University of Illinois). Erasmus became acquainted with Regio while living in Padua and was 'plainly impressed with him ... Erasmus clearly knew Regio's translations from Plutarch and compared them with Filelfo's version' (Bietenholz et al., Contemporaries of Erasmus, vols. 1-3, p. 134)

Provenance:

1) Thomas Howard, 14th earl of Arundel (1585-1646), art collector and politician (ownership inscription 'T Arundell' to title-pages).

2) Royal Society, London (early ink-stamps to title-pages), probably from the bequest of Henry Howard, 6th earl of Norfolk (1628-1684), who was persuaded to donate his 'magnificent library' (ODNB) by John Evelyn.

3) '1873 sold by the Society to B. Quaritch who resold' (pencil note to front free endpaper).

4) Thomas Alfred Walker (1862-1935), historian of Peterhouse, Cambridge (bookplate).

'Arundel's role as a bibliophile and the range of his scholarly interests are hard to appreciate today because his library has been dispersed—most of the manuscripts are in the British Library, while the books have been scattered among public and private collections, where many now lie untraced—but it is clear that he possessed one of the greatest libraries in the British Isles, probably totalling over 3000 volumes' (ODNB).

271 Tanursi (Francesco Maria). 'Compendio storico della città di Ripatransone nel Piceno', 1769, Italian manuscript in black ink on laid paper, 23 leaves + 3 blanks, illustrated with grisaille watercolours with pen-and-ink outlining on 10 pages, including a half-page city view, 20 heraldic vignettes and approximately 60 depictions of antiquities and objets d'art, 2 pages of Roman inscriptions reproduced in pen and ink, slightly spotted and toned, a few old repairs, old wrappers, spine worn, 4to (26.4 x 19.8cm)

The author is described on the title-page as a patrician ('patrizio') of Ripatransone. This does not appear to be the same work as his Memorie istoriche della città di Ripatransone, which was posthumously printed at Fermo in 1793 and is unillustrated. Another work, Historiarum Ripanarum epitome, possibly a Latin version of the Memorie, was printed in Rome in 1781. In 1783 a work by Tanursi titled 'Historiae patriae epitome' was printed as an appendix to De rebus Ripanis by Giovanni Garzoni and Teodoro Quattrini. All of these printed accounts are very rare: OCLC traces one copy each of the Memorie and the Historiarum, and three of De rebus Ripanis.

ESTC R172280; Wing B989aA.

Very rare ESTC traces two copies only world-wide (Birmingham Central Libraries and Canterbury Cathedral). 'The oldest known Birmingham book' (Harman & Showell, Showell's Dictionary of Birmingham, unpaginated). John Barton was master of King Edward's School in Birmingham from 1639 to 1645, having been recruited by the school tenants who were 'outraged that so few of [Barton's predecessor] Billingsley's pupils were being sent up to the universities' (ODNB), he is described on the title-page as 'not long since Master of the Free School of Birmingham in Warwickshire'.

Iohn Smyth and Richard Clyfton: wherein, first is proved, that the baptizing of Infants of beleivers, is an ordinance of God. Secondly, that the rebaptizing of such, as have been formerly baptised in the Apostate Churches of Christians, is utterly unlawful, 1st edition, Amsterdam: Gyles Thorp, 1610, [20], 226 [2], signatures *-4, 2, A-Ee4, Ff2 (the final leaf titled A Table of the Principal and some other special things handled in this Treatise', early ink ownership inscription to front blank 'Richard Clifton owes this Booke Anno 1659, with additional inscription, most likely in the same hand to the following blank before title, quoting from Exodus, Chapter XIV, Verses 13-14, and with a further ownership inscription in brown ink to blank leaf at end 'Richard Clifton is the treu owner of this booke

July 1: 1660', some neat archival paper repairs to outer blank margins of some leaves, particularly at front and rear of volume, some other marks and minor marginal soiling, minor worm track to blank area at foot of inner margins (not affecting text), contemporary plain vellum, some marks and soiling, small 4to (18.5 x 14.5cm)

Provenance. Richard Clifton (1642-1664), son of Zachary Clifton (born 1589), and grandson of Richard Clyfton, the author of the present work, with ownership inscriptions to front and rear of the volume. Zachary Clifton returned with his family to England in 1651 during the Commonwealth era, and died in 1671. According to information received from Sue Allan, historian at Scrooby Manor, Richard Clifton's books may have found their way to Warwickshire, and into the ownership of his clergyman brother Zachary Clifton Jr. (born Amsterdam 1633, died Wasperton 1715).

STC 5450; ESTC online (British Library, Cambridge University Trinity College, Lambeth Palace, Bodleian; Yale, Harvard, Union Theological Seminary New York, American Baptist Samuel Colgate Historical New York).

Puritan radical Richard Clifton (circa 1553-1616) was the guiding light of the separatist church established at Scrooby Manor House in Nottinghamshire, now recognised as the congregation from which emerged the first Pilgrim Fathers. In 1586, Clifton became rector of All Saints Church, Badsworth, and continued in this role until 1605, during which time he provided spiritual guidance to William Brewster and William Bradford, both passengers on board The Mayflower in 1620, as well as John Robinson. Following an edict by King James I, in 1605, Clifton was declared non-conformist and expelled from the parsonage at Badsworth, and given refuge at William Brewster's home, the Manor House at Scrooby in Yorkshire. When the Authorities caught up with him, Clifton was ex-communicated, and he escaped persecution by emigrating, along with many of his followers, to Amsterdam in August 1608.

Rare no copy traced at auction. This copy particularly significant given the Clifton family provenance.

ESTC S103941 (thirteen copies world-wide); STC 13060. 'Hemmingsen, a bishop, scholar, and influential Lutheran preacher in his native Denmark, is certainly not as recognized today as his Protestant contemporary John Calvin, but he was an important figure ... It is surely noteworthy that Hemmingsen's commentary on James was translated into English and Calvin's was not' (Cooper, 'Saving the Strawy Epistle: The Recovery of James after Martin Luther', Haddington House Journal 11 (2009), p. 147). The work first appeared in Latin in Hemmingsen's Commentaria in omnes epistolas apostolorum (1572)

British Bee Books 76; Kress 2914; Rothschild 1371-2.

Rare first edition of one of the most important and notorious works of political economy published in the 18th century, with 'rejoyning' for 'rejoycing' on page 36 (here corrected in manuscript) as called for by Rothschild. Drawing on Hobbes and French Augustinian thinkers including Bayle, Pascal and La Rochefoucauld, Mandeville's allegory presents human nature as essentially self-interested, 'alleging that their "vilest and most hateful Qualities", their passions, render humans sociable animals and make them "fit for the largest, and according to the World, the happiest and most flourishing Societies"' (ODNB). 'A celebrated work, which through Adam Smith, had an immense influence ... It is, in fact ... the only possible justification of individualism and laissez-faire' (Foxwell, cited in Kress).

326 Rheticus (Georg Joachim, 1514–1574; former owner). Procli, De sphaera liber I. Cleomedis, De mundo . . . Arati Solensis Phaenomena Dionysii Afri, Descriptio orbis habitabilis. Omnia Graece et Latine ita coniuncta . . . una cum Ioan Honteri Coronensis De Cosmographiae rudimentis, Basel Sebastian Henricpetri, 1561, 5 parts in 1 volume, Proclus's work with woodcut illustrations in text including an armillary sphere, astronomical diagrams and a vignette of Proclus teaching, Honter's work with 12 double-page woodcut maps each with additional single-page woodcut map to conjugate leaf verso, complete with the final leaf (blank except for publisher's woodcut device verso), browning, damp-staining to lower margins, concomitant holes to first 4 leaves including title-page, title-page with central 4cm diagonal closed tear, contemporary inscription 'Joachimo Rhaetico' in ink to head with initial 'I' just trimmed (see note), and later inscriptions including 'Seminarii Studiosorum[m] Religiosorum] Vienna, Anno 1620 12 April', later half morocco, rebaked retaining most of original spine, crudely recoloured, 8vo (15 x 9cm)

Provenance: Georg Joachim Rheticus (1514–1574), inscribed 'Joachimo Rhaetico' ('From Joachim Rheticus') at the head of the title-page, in Rheticus's hand.

An extraordinary and newly discovered association copy throwing light on the career of one the principal actors in the scientific revolution of the 16th century

Rheticus was the sole pupil of Nicolaus Copernicus, and the meeting between the two at Frombork in 1539 is considered without question to mark 'the beginning of modern astronomy' (DSB XI p. 359). He is perhaps remembered chiefly for encouraging Copernicus finally to consent to the publication of De Revolutionibus (1543), and for seeing the work through the press at Nuremberg while Copernicus lay dying, but it was in fact Rheticus's own account of his teacher's system, the Narratio prima (1540), which was the first published exposition of Copernican heliocentrism.

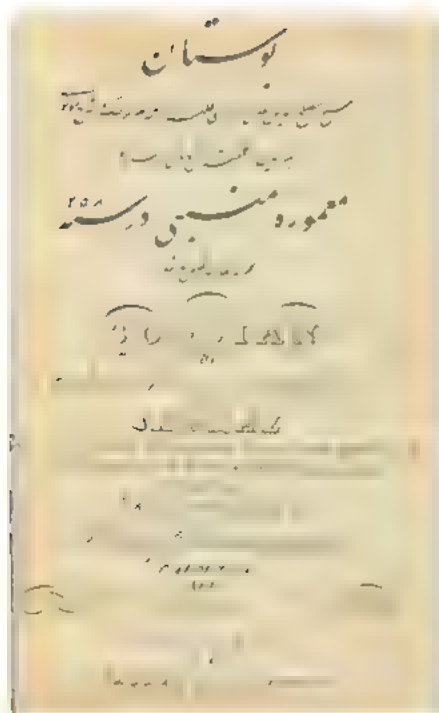

Basel printers Heinrich Petri (1508–1579) and son Sebastian (1546–1626) were distant relatives of Johann Petreius, printer of the first edition of De Revolutionibus. In 1566, five years after their printing of the present compilation, they issued the second edition of De Revolutionibus, which was the first to contain the Narratio Prima.

Rheticus was a prolific correspondent at the centre of European intellectual life in the mid-16th century, and a handful of books with his inscription are known to exist in libraries or are attested in surviving letters and other sources. The National Library of Sweden holds a copy of Sacrobosco's Sphaera mundi and other texts (Venice: Giunta, 1518) which contains the similar inscription 'Joachimo Rhaetico', also in Rheticus's hand (shelfmark Stockholm K. Bibl., 106A, Fol. RAR, see further Goddu, 'Copernicus's Annotations: Revisions of Czartoryski's "Copernicana"', Scriptorium 58 (2), 2004, p. 207).

The only other example of a book inscribed by Rheticus we trace in commercial records is the legendary Horblit-O'More-Beltrame copy of De Revolutionibus, presented to Andreas Aurifarber, which achieved a record price for a printed book relating to the history of science when it realised $473,000 at auction in 1989 (see Gingerich, An Annotated Census of Copernicus' De revolutionibus, I.117).

Adams P2134 (under Proclus); Houzeau & Lancaster 767, Sabin 65940, Shirley, World 108 & British Isles 69; VD16 P 4970.

First edition of this compendium of cosmographical treatises to include Johannes Honter's De Cosmographiae rudimentis, which here contains Honter's double-page cordiform world map and maps of Malta, Mallorca, Cyprus, southern Africa, Madeira, Egypt and the Arabian Peninsula (as well as the Persian Gulf, India, Java, Sri Lanka ('Taprobana') and elsewhere, the first edition of Honter's work, printed at Krakow in 1530, is exceptionally rare and was printed with a double-page world map only. Heinrich Petri had previously issued a compendium containing Proclus's work together with those of Cleomedes and Aratus in 1547; the present iteration, containing Honter's text, was reprinted in 1585.

John Flaxman

352 Vasari (Giorgio). *Le Vite de' più eccellenti Pittori, Scultori, e Architettori, scritte, & di nuovo ampliate..., co' ritratti loro et con le nuove vite dal 1550. in fino al 1567, Parts 1, 2 and 3 (Primo Volume only), lacking the final part entitled Secondo et ultimo volume della Terza Parte, 2nd edition, Florence, Appresso I Giunti, 1568, elaborate woodcut title, woodcut initials and ornaments, woodcut portrait of the author to B4 verso, 126 medallion woodcut portraits of artists, set within borders of female figures representing the arts (woodcut portraits to pages 166, 193, 200, 203 and 232 in Part 1, and to pages 16, 51 and 227 of Part 3 not printed), TT3 with a small portion of the leaf torn out and missing (affecting text), Part 3 lacking title (1), and colophon leaf at end (Aaa2), some early ink marginal annotations to Part 3, some minor marks and soiling, contemporary vellum, first volume heavily worn with covers detached and spine defective, second volume with some soiling and wear, particularly to lower half of spine, 4to

Provenance: John Flaxman (1755-1826), artist and sculptor, with his signature in brown ink to front pastedown of Part 3; John Payne Collier with his ink annotation below Flaxman's signature, and further annotation to verso of front endpaper, stating that the volume was given to him by Mr John Wilson, dated 17 May 1880; Patricia Milne-Henderson, with her small bookplate to head of front pastedown
Gamba 1725, Censimento 16 CNCE 48229, Mortimer, Italian Books 515, PMM 88, Adams V296.

The first two volumes of Vasari's three-volume work. The first volume consisting of the Prima e Seconda Parte, and the second volume containing the Primo Volume della Terza Parte. The third volume, not present here, is entitled Secondo et ultimo volume della Terza Parte. Vasari's Lives was first published in 1550, but without portrait illustrations. This second edition was significantly expanded, and is the first to include the woodcut illustrations. In this copy, the title page to the first volume does not include an inset view of Florence at the foot, and the image of dead artists rising from the ground is placed at the centre of the woodcut title, rather than printed on the verso.

Flaxman lived in Rome between 1787 and 1794, and went on sketching expeditions with William Young Ottley in 1792. Flaxman was an assiduous student of so-called Italian 'primitives' such as Ghiberti, Botticelli and Signorelli, and it is no surprise that he owned a copy of this illustrated edition of Vasari's Lives, the 'first modern history of art' (Printing and the Mind of Man).

356* Baden-Powell (Robert, 1857-1941). Pen and ink self portrait with presentation inscription in capital letters, circa 1900, in full 'You may rejoice!! Wunhi has returned from the Wars!! A wreck of his former self - but still alive - and that, after all, is something to be thankful for', written in eight lines above a pen and ink portrait of Baden-Powell with pith helmet and unshaven look leaning decrepitiy on his sword, a few minor spots, the whole of a narrow strip of off-white laid paper with slightly roughened edges and a small tear to upper blank area of left margin, overall 34 x 10.5cm From the Pamela Dugdale collection. Mrs Dugdale and Baden-Powell had been in amateur dramatics together while Baden-Powell was in Meerut in 1897 Baden-Powell had played the part of a Chinese man called 'Wunhi' in the play of The Geisha, a late Victorian Edwardian musical comedy by Sidney Jones, Lionel Monckton and Harry Greenbank. Baden-Powell remained friends with the Dugdales and often signed himself 'Wunhi' when writing to Mrs Dugdale. This characterful pen and ink self portrait and note may have been sent by Baden-Powell when he was briefly back in the United Kingdom in October 1901 following the Second Boer War (1) £200 - £300

357* Baden-Powell (Robert, 1857-1941). Autograph Letter Signed 'R. BadenPowell', no place, Friday 18th, no year, to Mrs Turner, 'I'll gladly come over and look at the house about 5 o'cl. Empty beer jug does not describe me now - I don't feel as if I had ever had the beer in me at all! However tomorrow I'll be out in the fresher air. Have you any other "Sentimental Tommy" like literature to lend me to take out with me', some heavy spotting, 2 pp. with integral blank, 8vo

From the Pamela Dugdale Collection Sentimental Tommy was a novel written by J.M. Barrie, first published in 1896, and was followed up with Tommy and Grizel, published in 1902. The story begins with Tommy aged five and describes his tribulations on becoming a young man. It seems likely that this was written when Baden-Powell was returning to the war in South Africa.

Stanton, a little soiling and slightly heavier on folds, approximately 48 x 40cm, together with two similar military commissions on vellum, appointing John T. Bolton to First Lieutenant 'For gallant and meritorious services during the [American Civil] war', 10 May 1866, and Captain, 13 March 1867, both with stamped signatures of President Andrew Johnson and Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton, the first with circular brown stain at head, plus an earlier commission appointing First Sergeant in Company K of the 28th Regiment of New Jersey Volunteers, 15 September 1862, signed by the commanding officer W.V. Wisewell, printed on paper with manuscript insertions, some overall browning and creasing, approximately 25 x 38cm, plus (Oldroyd Osborn H), The Assassination of Abraham Lincoln, Flight, Pursuit, Capture, and Punishment of the Conspirators, with an Introduction by T.M Harris, Washington. O.H Oldroyd, 1901, illustrations from photographs, advert leaf and folding map at rear some soiling to first few leaves, frontispiece and title-page slightly creased, original cloth gilt, slightly rubbed, 8vo, plus a typed letter signed from Oldroyd to Captain John T Bolton, Washington, 28 March 1914, beginning 'Mr H H. Rumble of your city visited my Collection in this House in which Abraham Lincoln died and informed me that you were on duty at Ford's Theatre on the night of the Assassination', and hoping Bolton might write his recollections of that event to place in the collection, some light browning and creasing, one page, 8vo, the five documents matted in heavy card mounts with an additional printed contents list and contained with the inset book in a bespoke brown half morocco clam shell book box, the spine gilt-titled 'The Assassination of Abraham Lincoln Documents', overall 68 x 54cm

John T Bolton was a respected soldier who was present when Abraham Lincoln was assassinated. It is understood from the family that he had applied for a position in the President's personal security team and that this was being considered at the time of the assassination. Lincoln was shot by John Wilkes Booth, an actor and Confederate sympathiser on 14 April 1865 and died the following day

385* Wellington (Arthur Wellesley, 1st Duke, 1769-1852). Autograph letter signed, 'Wellington', Cartaxo, 13 December 1810, in brown ink on laid paper, marked at the head 'Private & confidential', addressed to C[harles] Stuart, 3 pages with sentiment and signature as one line on fourth page, light uniform toning, 4to, together with another autograph letter signed, 'Wellington', Cartaxo, 29 November 1810, in a good clear hand in brown ink on laid paper (watermarked G. Jones 1809), to C[harles] Stuart, 3 pages, 4to

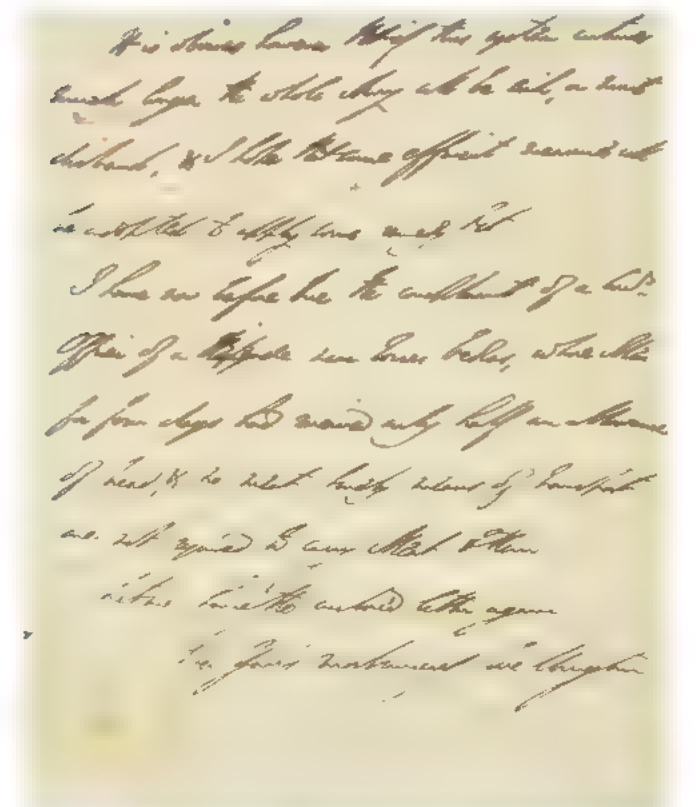

For the first work: A very revealing letter conveying Wellington's opinion of Spaniards: 'It is difficult to understand the Spaniards exactly, they are such a mixture of haughtiness and low intrigue. The Marquis de la Romana and the officers about him are ... perfectly happy with their reception here, and the manner in which they have been treated. I have been civil to all the other officers, as far as they have come within my reach; and they have been treated with great attention by all the General Officers of the army; and their men are as well, if not better off than our own. But I always doubt a Spaniard being satisfied with anything; and I should not be surprised if O'Donnell particularly, and possibly others, expressed dissatisfaction at being here'. Gurwood, Dispatches of Field Marshal the Duke of Wellington, 1838. Volume VII, pages 37-38.

For the second work: The letter concerns the buying of corn in Algiers by Mr Johnstone & Mr Sampayo. Supplies for both British and Portuguese armies was always a great concern to the Duke.

386* Wellington (Arthur Wellesley, 1st Duke, 1769-1852). Autograph letter signed, 'Wellington', Cartaxo, 12 February 1812, in a good clear hand in brown ink on laid paper, to C[harles] Stuart, 3 pages, 4to. Letter concerns the welfare of the British Army and Wellington's concerns about lack of supplies and the public at homes perception.

'I have received from Marshal Beresford, regarding the miserable wants of the troops, to which I beg you, in this manner to draw attention of the Government. I omit to bring it before them in an official form, because I am unwilling to have such an account of the state of things (however true) go home to England'.

387* Wellington (Arthur Wellesley, 1st Duke, 1769-1852). Autograph letter signed, Wellington', Fuente Guinaldo, 10 May 1812, in a good clear hand in brown ink on laid paper, to C[harles] Stuart, 7 pages, 4to. The letter concerns the Portuguese Government food supplies on the British Commissariat.

'I have received your letter of 7th, it believe, save you, and certainly me, a good deal of trouble if you would be so kind as to send me the requisitions for the supplies by the Portuguese Government on our Commissariat. It is impossible for me to allow Mr Pippon of anybody else to grant them without my consent, and it would save a great deal of useless correspondence if they were to come in the regular form to me. This becomes the more necessary, as there is a prospect that the supply of corn, &c., will not be so plentiful as it has lately.'

394* Faraday (Michael, 1791-1867). An iron filings diagram fixed on waxed blue paper, circa 1850s, 9.5 x 14cm, tipped onto a contemporary album leaf and neatly inscribed in ink beneath, 'Lines of magnetic [force] by Faraday given me by Mr Sydney on my visit to him on June 21st 1872'

The Royal Institution own a laboratory notebook of Michael Faraday's which contains similar Iron filing diagrams produced by him in 1851 to demonstrate magnetic lines of force. He demonstrated their existence by coating sheets of paper with a thin layer of melted wax, pulling the iron filings poured over the top with bar magnets held beneath the paper. The iron filings were attracted to the magnetic forces around each magnet. The example offered here shows two circles with line patterns between and around them. The recipient from Faraday was the Reverend Edwin Sidney (c.1798-1872), Rector of Little Cornard, 1847-1872, and lecturer at the Royal Institution and elsewhere. Sidney knew Faraday quite well and a number of letters from Faraday to Sidney are in Michael Faraday's Correspondence, edited by Frank James at the Royal Institution, and now available online. Faraday gave these Iron filing diagrams to friends and colleagues and there are many examples in the Royal Institution archives and others elsewhere. However, the identity of the recipient of this example from Sidney is unknown and examples offered for sale are very rare.

401* Medieval deed: Gropecunt Lane, Bristol. Deed of sale and quitclaim for 4 marks (£2 13s 4d) and half a mark (6s 8d) with warranty; circa 1240, vellum deed in Latin written in a very neat court hand, John son of Roger Bat to William de Kent, all his land with the buildings in Gropecuntelana at Bristol (Bristol) (S: land of William Bardolf, E: land of Julian who was the daughter of John the son of Jacob; from the street in front (29 feet) to the town wall behind, where it is 30 feet broad), paying a yearly quitrent of 12 pence to Julian who was the daughter of John the son of Jacob as John the grantor has been accustomed to pay of the consideration, 4 marks (£2 13s 4d) paid to John and and half a mark (6s 8d) to Julian; Witnesses: James le Warre, Thomas Long, Richard Ailord, Simon the clerk, William de Bellomonte, Gilbert de Marleberge, Roger Tarleys, Richard de Pesia, William Bardolf, William Ruffo, tanner, Nicholas the chaplain, Robert Hod, some dust-soiling but ink dark and clear, 88 x 190mm, with partially restored armorial seal on vellum tag, [S^{TO}HANNIS FILII] ROGERIBAT[T], charge indistinct, 3cm diameter, mounted to a wooden board with six small pins, three related 20th-century manuscript paper labels posted to board, framed and glazed, overall 32 x 32cm. The first-named witness was James le Warre, Mayor of Bristol, 1236; William de Bellemonthe, Prepositor of Bristol, 1240, Robert Hod would have been known to his friends as Robin Hood.

A very rare early documentation of the place name 'Gropecunt Lane', the compounded street name found in about twenty English towns and cities during the Middle Ages, and believed to be a reference to organised prostitution centred on those areas. The earliest reference documented is to a Gropecuntelane in Oxford, c. 1230, now Grove Passage and Magpie Lane. All the original names have since changed or been bowdlerised to the more innocuous Grape Lane or similar, or have been completely lost; the latest documentation of Gropecuntlane traced being in Newcastle, 1588.

The Gropecunt Lane in Bristol referred to in this deed later became Hallier's Lane and after the Battle of Trafalgar was given the name Nelson Street, which is still current. The street runs through the Broadmead district of the city centre and is home to the Central Police Station. The English chronicler, topographer and antiquary William Worcestre (c. 1415–c. 1482) references Gropecuntlane in Bristol in his manuscript of 1480 (Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, MS. 210), and this undated deed, from the reign of King Henry III, proves it was in use much earlier than Worcestre records. One suggestion for the street name's origin made by Richard Coates (2011) is that as the name is concentrated in major ecclesiastical centres that would have been likely destinations of Oxford educated clerics the name may have originated as academic slang. The etymology of cunt is a matter of debate, but in common usage does not appear to have been taboo in the medieval period, even being used in an openly bawdy context several times by Chaucer in his Canterbury Tales (c. 1390). The word only becomes taboo towards the end of the eighteenth century, and was then not generally admissible in print until the end of the twentieth century.

403 [Nelson, Horatio, 1758–1805, Viscount]. The Morning Chronicle, London, Thursday, 7 November 1805, original broadsheet newspaper, 4pp., red ink duty stamp (threepence halfpenny) to upper margin of first page, some slight toning to first page and a few minor marks but generally very clean, folio (48 x 32cm)

Seven columns of the first three pages are taken up with the announcement of victory at the Battle of Trafalgar and the death of Viscount Nelson. A good survival of a genuine original issue on laid paper with the obligatory paper duty stamp.

(1) £300 - £400

404* Omdurman 1898. A set of 4 maps used by Lt. Horace Hood during the Battle of Omdurman, comprising 4 linen maps supplied by the War Office for Upper Egypt and the Sudan, compiled in the Intelligence Division, War Office, January and August 1898, 55 x 71.5cm, each inscribed in ink verso 'H.L. Hood' additionally inscribed 'White Nile', 'Blue Nile'

Rear-Admiral Sir Horace Lambert Alexander Hood, KCM, DSO, MVO (1870–1916), was the commander of the gunboat the Nasr, one of eight Nile gunboats providing artillery support on the Battle of Omdurman on 2 September 1898, and second in command to Captain David Beatty. Hood later became naval attaché in Washington, commanded the RN College at Osborne, and in June 1914 was appointed Naval Secretary to Sir Winston Churchill as First Lord of the Admiralty. He rose to rank of Rear-Admiral and went down with his flagship HMS Invincible at Jutland on 31 May 1916.

(4) £300 - £500

405 Philosophy Manuscript. Compendium Philosophiae, unpublished manuscript by Velly, circa early 18th century, 351 pp., written in Latin in brown ink in a neat but sometimes minuscule hand with some calligraphic headings, some spotting, ownership inscription of Auguste Boutin, Professeur au College de Vire, dated April 1887, to front free endpaper verso, and provenance note from Velly, 'Pharmacien à Vire' written beneath, contemporary mottled calf, gilt-decorated spine with leather label titled 'Logica', heavily rubbed, cracked on joints and some wear to extremities, 4to (22 x 16.5cm)
A pencil note at the front suggests that this seemingly unpublished work on logic may have been by the Jesuit priest and author of The History of France, Paul-Francois Velly (1690-1759). However, the ink note above suggests Velly was a pharmacist at Vire, a town in Normandy. The inscription appears to be in the same hand as that of the later owner, the mathematician Auguste Boutin who was a professor at the College of Vire.

416* Shelley Family. A group of 8 British and Italian scenes attributed to members of the poet Percy Bysshe Shelley's family, circa 1820/1830s, watercolour and pencil on paper or card, showing rural scenes of cottages and ruins including an Italian temple (?Paestum), and two of coastal scenes, fishing nets and lobster pots, all but one with one or more figures, unsigned, largest 25 x 17.5cm, the three smallest 11 x 14cm and the reverse, each mounted on card and with remains of backing paper to each from where previously mounted and displayed as a montage in one frame, two drawings with some see-through browning from mounting adhesive

Provenance: By direct family descent from John Shelley (1806-1866), of Avington Park House, Winchester, Hampshire. John was the younger and only brother of Percy Bysshe Shelley, (1792-1822), the celebrated poet and husband of Mary Wollstonecraft. Percy and John had four sisters, Elizabeth, Mary, Hellen and Margaret, their parents being Timothy and Elizabeth Shelley

Judging by the styles of these watercolours they are the work of at least two hands, and likely dating from 1820/1830s, and so may have been drawn by John and/or some of his sisters. What is known is that these drawings were passed from John to his son George Ernest Shelley (1840-1910) and, in turn, to his son George Edward Shelley (1891-1961), the current owner's grandfather.

George Edward Shelley was prevailed upon to part with a variety of Shelley memorabilia, some of which went to the Ashmolean Museum in Oxford. Other items including these drawings went to a Shelley museum that occupied part of Shelley Manor, Boscombe, Bournemouth, Dorset. (Shelley's widow Mary had bought a cliff-top home at Boscombe in 1851, intending to live there with her son Percy, and his wife Jane. The property is now known as Shelley Manor). It seems that for a period these drawings were displayed as a framed montage there, but following the closure of the museum in 2001, the items were returned to their respective Shelley heirs.
